Sheâ€™s often spotted showing off her incredible figure on her Instagram account in an array of teeny-tiny bikinis, but Bella Hadid has taken it one step further on the catwalk.

The 23-year-old model was photographed over the weekend walking in the Vivienne Westwood Paris Fashion Week show in the remarkable halls of Hotel de Ville.

Bella stunned onlookers when she sashayed down the catwalk wearing a white wedding dress, which was completely sheer at the top.

The puffy-sleeved dress left little to the imagination, with Bella showing off more than people were expecting.

Bizarrely, Bella also had a leather belt and dagger tied around her waist and in another outfit change, she wore a necklace of garlic.

Just last month, Bella went braless on the New York Fashion Week runway in a Tom Ford cut-out dress.

Bella's dress appeared to be only held together by black velvet bows at the neck and belly button.

The model was joined on the runway by her sister, Gigi Hadid and best friend Kendall Jenner, who also donned sheer dresses.
